

THE INSTITUTION OF FIRE ENGINEERS
FOUNDED 1918 • INCORPORATED 1924

Welcome to the Institution of Fire Engineers. This is the New Zealand Branch website.

The Institution of Fire Engineers (IFE) is an international organisation.

It was founded in the United Kingdom in the year 1918.

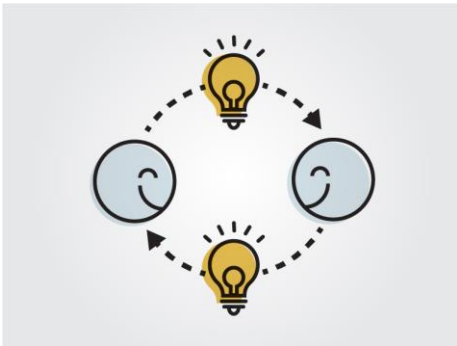

It was established in New Zealand in the year 1924.

The IFE has the following objectives:

1. To promote and improve the science and practice of firefighting operations, fire extinguishment, fire prevention and fire engineering.

2. To offer useful ideas about fire engineering to other IFE branches around the world as well as offering these ideas to the wider community.

3. To promote the best way of doing things while supporting IFE members to develop themselves within the fire engineering community.
